Method 13-a All Wildebeests or Gnus (EXCEPT Black Wildebeest)

Circumference: Measure the basses at their widest points. Make sure the loop of the tape is tight and parallel to the horn ends this measurement is not taken at a 90-degree angle to the axis of the horns. This is somewhat akin to the measurement of a burr of a large deer but smoother. (C)

Greatest Spread: Establish the outer limits of the horns using two right-angle forms. Measure the spread in a straight line and at a right angle to the axis of the skull. (G)

Tip-to-Tip Spread: Measure the tip-to-tip spread in a straight uninterrupted line. (E) In order to fall in the typical category (a) the tip-to-tip measurement must be at least 2 inches (5 cm) less than the greatest spread and (b) both the left and the right tips must point inwards, and not upwards or outwards. If not, the animal falls into the non-typical category.
